Documentation Requirements Pursuant to OAR 333-081-0075 and ORS 438.715

(1) As required by Oregon Laws 2013, chapter 356, section 3(4), when a NARRO accepts an offer from an individual to donate anatomical material it must provide that individual notice that clearly explains:

(a) How the NARRO intends to dispose of the anatomical material if donated, and whether and how and anatomical material may be returned;

It is the policy of the company to cremate any human remains after donation. The cremation will be performed by an independent, licensed crematorium at the direction of the company, subject to its rules and regulations. The disposition of the anatomical materials may be conducted by the institutions to which they have been distributed, in accordance with all laws pertaining to the disposition of human remains. The authorizing person may choose to have partial cremated remains returned by mail to a recipient at an address specified in the authorization of anatomical donation and cremation or scattered. If partial cremated remains are being returned, please allow approximately three to twelve months for the cremated remains to be processed and sent by registered mail. The timeframe regarding the return of cremated remains generally depends on the purpose and placement of the donation. For updates on the return of cremated remains, please contact us at (844) 330-7040.

(b) Whether or not the NARRO guarantees the coverage of costs related to transporting and disposing of the anatomical material and, if all costs will not be covered, what costs will be the responsibility of the individual making the donation; and

Upon authorization of donation, the company agrees to be responsible for certain costs directly related to the donation including death certificate processing, cremation and distribution or disposition of the anatomical materials. The company will not reimburse costs incurred before the authorization of donation. The cost of supplemental services will be the responsibility of the authorizing person. In the condition that unforeseen circumstances at the time of death appear to make transportation of the donor to a NARRO facility not possible for any reason, the company reserves the right, at their sole discretion and direction, to forego donation and provide for the disposition of human remains at a local crematorium.

- (c) What costs will be covered by the NARRO and what costs will be the responsibility of the individual making the donation if the individual or relative or personal representative subsequently rescinds, or the NARRO later rejects, the offer of anatomical material.

In the event that the authorizing person subsequently rescinds the authorization, the authorization of anatomical donation and cremation becomes totally and completely void and no obligation will be placed on the company or its associated agents regarding any costs related to the death or disposition of the donor. The authorizing person will be responsible for all costs incurred with the donation including transportation and other arrangements for disposition.

- (2) If a NARRO returns any anatomical material to a relative or personal representative of a donor, the NARRO must provide that person with a notice that discloses whether all or part of the donor's body is being returned.

It is the policy of the company that the cremated remains returned will not include the anatomical materials recovered for research or education. The cremated remains being returned consists of cremated human remains that could not be used for research or education.

- (3) The notice required by sections (1) and (2) of this rule must be in writing and be printed in at least 14-point type.

The Cremation Process

The human remains of the decedent are placed in a combustible container and delivered to the crematory. All cremations are performed individually. The cremation process begins with the placement of the container in the cremation chamber where it is subjected to intense heat and flame, reaching temperatures of approximately 1400 to 1800 degrees Fahrenheit. Due to the intense heat and flame, all substances are consumed or driven off, except for bone fragments (calcium compounds) and metals, as the temperature is not sufficiently high enough to consume them. During the cremation process it may be necessary to open the cremation chamber and reposition the human remains to facilitate a complete and thorough cremation.

Due to the nature of the cremation process any personal possessions or valuable materials, such as dental gold or jewelry, as well as body prostheses or dental bridgework, that are left with the decedent may be destroyed or will otherwise not be recoverable and will be disposed of in any lawful manner, including recycling to one or more charitable organizations with no financial gain to the donation organization or crematory. The Authorizing Agent understands that arrangements must be made to remove such possessions or valuables prior to the time that the decedent is transported to the custody of Ke Ola 'Uhane, an Aeternitas company.

Following an appropriate cooling period, the cremated remains are swept or raked from the cremation chamber. The crematory makes all reasonable efforts, and uses its best efforts, to remove all the cremated remains from the cremation chamber, but it is impossible to remove all of them, as some dust or other residue from the process are always left behind. In addition, while every effort will be made to avoid commingling, there will be inadvertent or incidental commingling of minute particles of cremated remains from the residue of previously cremated remains, and the Authorizing Agent understands and accepts this fact.

After the cremated remains are removed from the cremation chamber, the skeletal remains often contain recognizable bone fragments. After the bone fragments have been separated from the other materials, they will then be mechanically processed or pulverized. This process of crushing or grinding may cause incidental commingling of the remains with the residue from the processing of previously cremated remains. These granulated particles of unidentifiable dimensions will be virtually unrecognizable as human remains.

After the cremated remains have been processed, they will be placed into a cardboard or plastic urn. The crematory will make all reasonable efforts to put all the cremated remains in the urn, except for dust or other residue that might remain on the processing equipment. The urn containing the cremated remains will be returned to a recipient or disposed of as directed by the Authorizing Agent.
